Project: British Columbia Perinatal Data Registry
Develop and test new features, fix defects, review code and contribute with the team are some of the skills and activities applied to develop the front and back end of the new data registry application for the Provincial Health Services Authorities. This CRUD application, built with Angular5, Node.js and Express, allows the user to manage the data collected from obstetrical and neonatal medical records of births in the province through a rest service. The data is stored in a MSSQL database and retrieved using Rest APIs.
